The Edicts and Orders of the Grand Ours-The Most Magnificent Speciacle Ever Witnessed Here.

RDIOT.

The secret portals of Memphi are assailed by the curious, vuigar, clamorous for Knowledge and Certainty. The untaught dwellers on earth ask for Light. Let the veil he drawn, that the inquisitive may be gratified!

On the night fixed by astronomers as the seventeenth of February, A. D., 1874, it is Our royal pleasure that the Memphi shall again appear in Our adopted and well-beloved city of Memphis.

For the instruction of the Old, We will reveal our ancient history, and dassie the eyes of the Young by Our magnificence. The glorious city on the Nile, now no more, alast greets her daughter on the Mississippi. From the house-tops, from the bluffs, in surging crowds, witness, O mortals, the dazaling speciacle, softened by the gentie strains of music. The Memphi announce their will for the night, EDICT.

Washington, February 16.-Senator Washington, February 16.—Senator Anthony presented a memorial signed by the officers of the national banks of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, protesting against the passage of the bill for the withdrawal of currency from New England. Laid on the table. Senator Kelly, of Oregon, presented a petition from the citizens of that State, in regard to the charges against his colleague Mitchell and asking that the same be investigated by the senate, Mr. Kelly said that he knew Mitchell twelve years, and knew nothing derogatory to his character. In presenting the charges he desired to be distinctly understood. He said nothing in favor of or against them. He moved that the subject be referred to the committee on privileges and elections. So ordered.

So ordered.
Senator Frelinghuysen presented a memorial from colored citizens, stating that a number of them had applied to the American colonization society for transportation to Liberia, and the society was unable to send them, and asking that the government detail a vessel to carry them to Liberia, and bring back produce; also asking the aid of the government for the construction of a railroad into the interior of Liberia. Referred to committee on commerce. mittee on commerce.
Senator Wright presented a petition to the citizens of Iowa for the restoration of the duty on tea and coffee, and an increase of the duty on manufactured cotton goods, Re-duty on tea and coffee, and an increase of the duty on manufactured cotton goods. Referred.

At the expiration of the morning hour, the senate resumed the consideration of the bill to equalize the currency, and Senator Cameron ofered a substitute for the committee's bill, repealing all acts of congress which limit or restrict the amount of notes for circulation, and providing that all associations organized to carry on banking shall be free to establish a national bank circulation subject to all the limitation now provided by law, except the limit as to circulation, which is hereby repealed.

Senator Cameron, in advocating the adoption of his substitute, said he had not heard a single business man say that we had enough currency. The national banking system had done much good, and should be extended. His substitute was designed to satisfy the demand for more money without causing any shock is the capital already invested in good faith. The law gave a fixed amount of currency, allowing no greater abundance of money at one time than another. This fixed amount of currency was a terror to honest men and a lubilee to speculator. The and national bank notes would soon take the place of greenbacks.

Senator Pratt said that an attempt to return to specie payments now would be disastrous to the whole country, and he would oppose any scheme looking to specie payment now. He would support the substitute of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Senator Cameron), believing it to be a wise one. He favored a return to specie payment, but could not shut his eyes to the fact that the only road to resumption was contraction, and that would be disastrous to the country.

Senator Frelinghnysen opposed the substitute, and said that its adoption would be of greater injury to the financial and business interests of the country than the rabellion was. He favored a reasonable retrenchment and the imposition of more taxes. He believed that the tax on whisky should be intreased to one dollar a gallon, and on tobacco to thirty-two cents a pound. The pledge given to pay treasury notes in coin should be redeemed.

Senator Flanagan favored returning to specie payment as soon as practicable.

Senator Buckingham moved that the bill be recommitted to the finance committee, and with the views of the senators now broughtouthy discussion the committee could frame a bill whichtwould harmonize with the views of the majority of the senate. Senator Morton said he saw no advantage to be gained by recommitting the bill. Three Senator Flanagan favored returning to spe-Senator Morton said he saw no advantage to be gained by recommitting the bill. Three months nearly had alrendy passed, and, so far as this finance measure was concerned, no progress had been made. The committee first brought forward a resolution of a sentimental character. Their twenty-dve million dollar bill, was short of being a half-way measure. The question must be settled by the senate, and, being now before the senate, should be determined.

Senatar Scott said he thought time might be saved by committing the bill, and allowing the committee to report a measure covering all the questions.

Senator Sherman said the finance commit-tee had reported a bill to equalize the curren-cy as a bone fide measure of relief, and he did cy as a bond fide measure of relief, and he did not believe there were five senators against the original proposition, but it had been land-ed down with other questions; he would, therefore vote for the motion to recommit. rather than prolong discussion. The bill had been antagonized with every kind of proposi-tion involving the whole general question of finances, and no doubt it would be better for the committee now to frame some measure.

tion involving the whole general question of finances, and no doubt it would be better for the committee now to frame some measure covering the whole question of finance, and b ing it before the senate for action. Senator Logan said he thought his a very strange proceeding at this time without a vote on one single proposition, or without getting the sense of the senate on any one of the questions. A motion was made to recommit, had it not been that the motion was made by his friend from Connecticut, Mr. Buckingham, he would have thought it the result of an arrangement to deprive the senate of a vote. The finance committee had discovered that the bill could not be passed, and now they wanted it recommittee.

Mr. Sherman said that the motion to recommit was made by a gentleman not connected with the finance committee.

Senator Logan said that all members of the committee who had spoken favored recommittal. The bill might be recommitted as often as they liked, but he wanted it understood that there must be a vote, and the issue could not be dodged. They might just as welface the music one time as another. To recommit the bill would only zerve to reproduce the same arguments already delivered, and the would be gained. duce the same arguments already delivered, and time would be gained. Senator Cameron said it was very evident that this debate must continue some days yet; he therefore moved that the senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The chair laid before the senate a communication from the secretary of war asking an appropriation for the commission to establish a military prison. Referred to the committee on appropriations.

Senator Stockton asked to be excused from service on the committee on manufactures.

service on the committee on manufactures. No objection being made he was excused, and Mr. Hager appointed to fill the vacancy.

Mr. Cameron renewed his motion for an exscritive session.

Senator Boreman moved to adjourn.

The latter motion was adopted and the senate adjourned. House. House.

Hackmen conveying parties to the Memphis Theater are instructed to approach it from the west side, and after unloading to pass eastward without delay. Non-observance of this rule will involve confusion and loss of time.

In the event of rain the grand pageant will necessarily be postponed; but whatever the state of the weather, the reception at the Memphis theater will be held, the Memphi appearing there, at least in all their splendor, as indicated in the above programme.

It is ordered that the carriage way along the route of the pageant be left entirely to the Memphi, and the street spectators keep strictly to the sidewalks. Under no circumstance shall any vehicle be allowed on the streets of the procession until it has passed.

The police will see that these instructions are enforced.

Mr. Kelley Penn.] offered a resofution that the members of the house and senate reassemble in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphila, in an informal joint session, on Monday, September 7, 1874, in centennial commemoration of the assembling of delegates from the several colonies and provinces of North America, on Monday, September 7, 1774, and that the speaker of the house be invited to preside over the meeting, and that Vice-President Wilson be requested to deliver an address appropriate to the occasion. After remarks in support of the resolution by Messrs. Kelley and Waddell,

Mr. Hale [Maine] opposed the resolution as an unprecedented thing. The fundamental objection which he had to it was that this was but one of many measures preparatory to having congress appropriate money to pay the expenses of the great centennial exposition of 1878, to amount to from five million to ten million dollars.

Mr. Hoar suggested its reference to the committee on centennial exposition. He thought it something disrespectful to the senate to propose that its presiding officer should address and that the speaker of the house should preside over the convention.

Mr. Kelley moved to suspend the rules and adopt the resolutions. The motion to suspend was seconded. The house refused to suspend the rules by 125 yeas to 55 nays—there being less than two-thirds in the affirmative, the motion was rejected.

Mr. Kasson, from the committee on ways and means, reported a bill providing that moneys paid into the hands of any collector or into the treasury, for customs duties in accordance with any decision or ruling previously made by the secretary of the treasury in regard to customs duties shall be changed by the same or a succeeding secretary, except it be in concurrence with an opinion in favor of such change given by the same or a succeeding s

Kelley disclaimed the idea of holding that department responsible. epartment responsible.

Mr. Dawes went into further explanation of the matter, and argued that the secretary of the beasury was right in his decision. What he Dawes; objected to was, that any secretary of the treasury should have power to make his own construction of the law, and then draw his warrant on the treasury for the amount which he decides should be refunded. That should require the action of congress. Mr. Kasson moved to suspend the rules, which was agreed to, and the bill passed.

Mr. Kelley then offered his resolution for the celebration of the fifth of September, 1874, which was referred.

Mr. Garfield from the committee on appropriations reported the regular legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and moved that it be made the special order for next Wednesday. Mr. Woodford argued that the first great question which called for a decision, was the status of the forty-four millions reserve. The house refused to make this hill the special order for Wednesday, and amount of currency was a terror to honest men and a Jubilee to speculators. The increase of national banks would enable the United States to resume specie payment sooner than by any other process. The present national bank currency was requally as safe and far more convenient than metallic currency. Increase the facilities, and national bank notes would soon take the piece of greenbacks.

OBITUARY.

General Anthony Foster. Died, at his residence, in Panola county, diss., February 8th, after a brief illness, Gen-tral ANTHONY FOSTER, in the seventy-first From the Panola (Miss.) Star.

From the Panola (Miss.) Star.]

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—General ANTHONY FOSTER died at his residence in this county on Sanday last, after a short ilmess. The deceased was a native of South Carolina, but came to this State in early lile, and nas remained here ever since. He was sevenly one years old at the time of his death; and up to his last filness was one of the most vigorous men of his age we ever saw. When quite a young man General FOSTER saw military service is Texas and Mexico, and he was also in the Confederate army during a portion of the late war. His courage was of the highest order. No man living ever saw ANTHONY FOSTER quali in the presence of danger. In civil life he possessed the esteem and confidence of the people among whom he lived, and more than once received office at their hands—twice as a member of the State Legislature. He had a warm, impulsive, kindly heart, standing by his friends under all circumstances; at the same time he was prompt to resent an affront, and suffered so man to taespass upon his rights. The death of General Foster causes general and sincere regret. He was one of that class of citizens who are now fast passing away—the oid land-marks of this country. He was buried on Monday now has passing away—the old land-marks of this country. He was buried on Monday at Fredonia Church. May the sod rest lightly over the breast of him who in life was ever true and generous and manly.

AT AUCTION.

Four Building Lots on Market Square and Winchester street, near the New Courthouse Site, at Peremptory Public Sale upon the Premises, at Twelve O'clock Tuesday, February 24th, O'clock Tuesday, February 24th,

UNDER positive instructions to sell, without reserve, to the highest biddler, we shall offer, as above announced, that valuable ground at the intersection of the west side of Markot Square with the south side of Winchester street, within half square of Main street, being 74 feet on Winchester street by 58 feet depth, laid off in four lots fronting Winchester street. The lots are of small size, so as to place them in reach of a greater number of buyers, and so as to have no waste ground to be taxed. Their favorable location, so close to the great thoroughfare of Main street, renders them very eligible for shop-keepers, mechanics and others who find it necessary or convenient to unite their residence and ousliness in the same house; and their close proximity to the intended site of the new courthouse affords a probability of larger increase of value in the early future than any at present in regard to any other Memphis real estate.

Title warranted. Terms—half cash, six and twelve months, with interest, secured by deed in trust on the property sold.

28 The old buildings on the lot will be said separately, for cash, on same day, after the sale of the lots.
